Extract from the Preface to the Catalogue of Bartram's Botanic Garden, for the year 1801.

"KINGSESS GARDENS were begun about the year 1720, by JOHN BARTRAM the elder, at a time when there were no establishments of this nature in Pennsylvania, if in any of the colonies, unless we may except that of Dr. Clayton, in Virginia, which, though inferior in extent, was furnished with a considerable variety. They are situated on the west bank of the Schuylkill, four miles from Philadelphia, and contain about eight acres of land. The mansion and green houses stand on an eminence from which the garden descends by gentle slopes to the edge of the river; and on either side the ground rises into hills of moderate elevation, to the summits of which its borders extend. From this scite are distinctly seen the winding course of the Schuylkill, its broad-spread meadows and cultivated farms, for many miles up and down; and the river Delaware, with the variety of vessels which it is constantly bearing to and from the metropolis of America. Beyond this there is an uninterrupted view of the Jersey shore, from the eastern to the southern horizon. The whole comprehends an extensive prospect, rich in the beauty of its scenery, and endless in diversity.

The worthy founder of these gardens, discovered in his early youth, a love for philosophy, and natural history in general. He was, however, particularly drawn to the study of Botany, from considering the importance of vegetables in the practice of medicine, and their indispensable use in various departments of human economy. But at that time Botany was but little attended to in America; and in the old world the works of the great Linnæus had not appeared; he had, therefore, no other aid in studying the great book of nature than his own persevering genius. His view in the establishment was to make it a deposite of the vegetables of these United States (then British colonies), as well as those of Europe and other parts of the earth, that they might be the more convenient for investigation. He soon furnished his grounds with the curious and beautiful vegetables in the environs, and by degrees with those more distant, which were arranged according to their natural soil and situation, either in the garden, or on his plantation, which consisted of between 200 and 300 acres of land, the whole of which he termed his garden.

The novelty of this horticultural scene, attracted the notice of the ingenious and curious; and coming to the knowledge of Europeans, several scientific men in England, particularly of the Royal Society, united to encourage the founder to undertake journeys towards the western frontiers, in order to discover and collect curious and non-descript productions in nature, particularly vegetables, that they might be sent to Europe.

Thus these extensive gardens became the Seminary of American vegetables, from whence they were distributed to Europe and other regions of the civilized world. They may with propriety and truth be called the Botanical Academy of Pennsylvania, since, being near Philadelphia, the Professors of Botany, Chemistry, and Materia Medica, attended by their youthful train of pupils, annually assemble here during the Floral season.

"The revered founder lived to see his garden flourish beyond his most sanguine expectations, and extend its reputation both at home and abroad, as the Botanic garden of America. In this condition it descended to his son, whose care it has been to preserve its well-earned fame, as well by continuing the collection already there, as by making annual excursions to increase the variety."

To the preceding notice of this establishment, the Proprietor will only add, that since it was published, the extent of the gardens, and the collection of indigenous and exotic plants have been greatly increased. The annual journeys to the mountains and morasses of the country are continued, and extended; large and expensive importations of valuable and ornamental plants, are annually made from Europe and South America. And the proprietor has made arrangements to procure annually, from different parts of Europe and America, the finest varieties of Fruit Trees, Grape Vines, &c. which will be carefully cultivated, to ascertain those most suitable to propagate for this climate. Priced Catalogues of which will be annually published, and distributed gratis by the agents of this establishment.

The Proprietor embraces this opportunity of acknowledging his obligations to a number of gentlemen for their valuable contributions to this establishment, especially to Professor Bose, and F. A. Michaux, of Paris, Professor Fischer, of Gottingen; Mr. Retberg, of Florence, Italy; Robert Barelay, Esq. and Messrs. Loddiges, of London; Condé Raguét, Esq. and Mr. Harris, of Rio Janeiro; Col. Long, of the U. S. Army; Thomas Nuttall, Esq. Professor of Botany, Cambridge, Mass.; David Thomas, of Cayuga, New York; Dr. Thomas J. Wray, of Augusta, Georgia; Col. David Reinhardt, Col. Isaac T. Avery, and D. Hoke, Esq. of North Carolina; Dr. A. W. Mitchell, of Alabama; Dr. William Darlington, of Chester county, Dr. J. Julius Le Moyne, of Washington county, and R. H. Rose, Esq. of Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania; the Rev. Nicholas Colin, Zacheus Collins, James Ronaldson, Dr. W. E. Hulings, Reuben Haines, D. Steinhaur, F. Kalisky, Dr. Thomas Say, Mrs. Warder, Mrs. Hopkinson Mrs. Harrison, Capt. James Meany, W. F. Krumphaar, J. Hemphill, E. Coleman, and Capt. Lelar, of Philadelphia—by all of whom seeds or plants have been politely contributed, which it would perhaps have been impossible to have obtained from other sources.

Orders for Trees, Plants, or Seeds, from this garden, left at the following places, viz—Messrs. G. Thorburn, & Son, Seedsmen, New York; Messrs. Bartow & Brannan, Booksellers, Washington City; Mr. Hugh Maxwell, Printer, Lancaster, Penn. Messrs. Shipley & Bartram, No. 58, High street; Alderman George Bartram, No. 68, South Second street, Philadelphia—or addressed, per mail (post paid) to the Proprietor, at the garden, will meet with prompt attention, and the articles will be carefully packed, so as to bear the transportation in safety.

American Indigenous Trees, Shrubs, and Plants, or their Seeds, suitable for sending to Europe, will be supplied in assortments from $5 to $500 or more. A separate Catalogue of which is published, distinct from the present, and will be distributed gratis on application therefor.

Strangers are invited to view the Gardens, at any time, (except Sundays) where any information will be cheerfully imparted.

GREEN HOUSE PLANTS.

*Those marked thus * will stand the winters of the Middle States, in the open air; and a large proportion of the others will support the winters of the Southern States:—They are in pots or boxes, and the prices are inclusive. Those which have no prices attached to them will not be for sale until the autumn of 1828.*

The foreign grapes, included in preceding list, have all been imported direct from respectable nurseries in France and Germany. Specimen vines, of every kind, have been planted out for bearing, and are now under careful cultivation, to ascertain those most suitable to propagate for this climate. Additions will annually be made to the collection; and catalogues will be published with descriptions of the colours and qualities of the fruit, &c.

The proprietor thinks it proper, however, to remark, that he coincides with the following observations in the catalogue of his respectable neighbours, Messrs. D. & C. Landreth:

"On presenting the list of foreign grapes, which we are cultivating for sale, it is proper to remark no calculation should be made on their regularly maturing fruit when planted in the country.

"The cultivation of the vine is attracting very considerable attention; in this state several vineyards, on extensive scales, have already been established, but as far as our personal knowledge extends, those formed from native varieties have succeeded best, and we are led to think, from the observation of many years, that if the culture of the vine for making wine is ever brought to much perfection in this section of the country, it will be with native kinds alone.

"In our cities many of the finest imported vines are found to succeed as well as in the most favoured clime of Europe, there being something peculiar in the atmosphere which tends to prevent the mildew they are so unfortunately subject to in the country.

"As, however, there are some situations where the atmosphere is dryer and more congenial to the vine than that of others, we would recommend a trial, where they are merely intended for the table—an occasional crop fully repaying the expense and trouble attendant on their cultivation."

OBSERVATIONS ON TRANSPLANTING TREES.

[Selected from Messrs. D. & C. Lundreth's Catalogue.]

On removing trees from the nursery, care should be taken to prevent the roots from drying, previously to planting them, otherwise they may receive considerable injury. Immediately on their receipt the bundles should be unpacked, the roots well watered and "laid in" until the ground in which they are to be planted be ready to receive them. By laying in is to be understood the making of a trench sufficiently large to admit the roots, into which they are placed: the earth having been previously made fine, is then filled in around them, and a gentle watering given, in which situation they may remain with safety until planted. The holes in which it is intended to plant them, should, for an ordinary sized nursery tree, be from 2½ to 3 feet in diameter, and about the same in depth; the earth from the bottom should be thrown aside, and its place filled up with good compost or black mould, (no fresh stable manure should be used in the compost.) The tree should be planted one or two inches deeper than it stood in the nursery: the roots and fibres being spread out horizontally, and during the process of filling in the earth, the tree should be shaken several times, so as to admit the soil between the roots, and thus fill up any cavities that might otherwise remain. The earth should then be trodden down and gently watered; in a short time it will have settled, and any hollows that may have formed should be filled up—finishing by forming a basin around the trunk to receive the rain or watering which it may be necessary to give it, if the ensuing season should prove dry; to prevent the winds from loosening the earth around the roots, the tree should be secured to a stake by bands of straw.

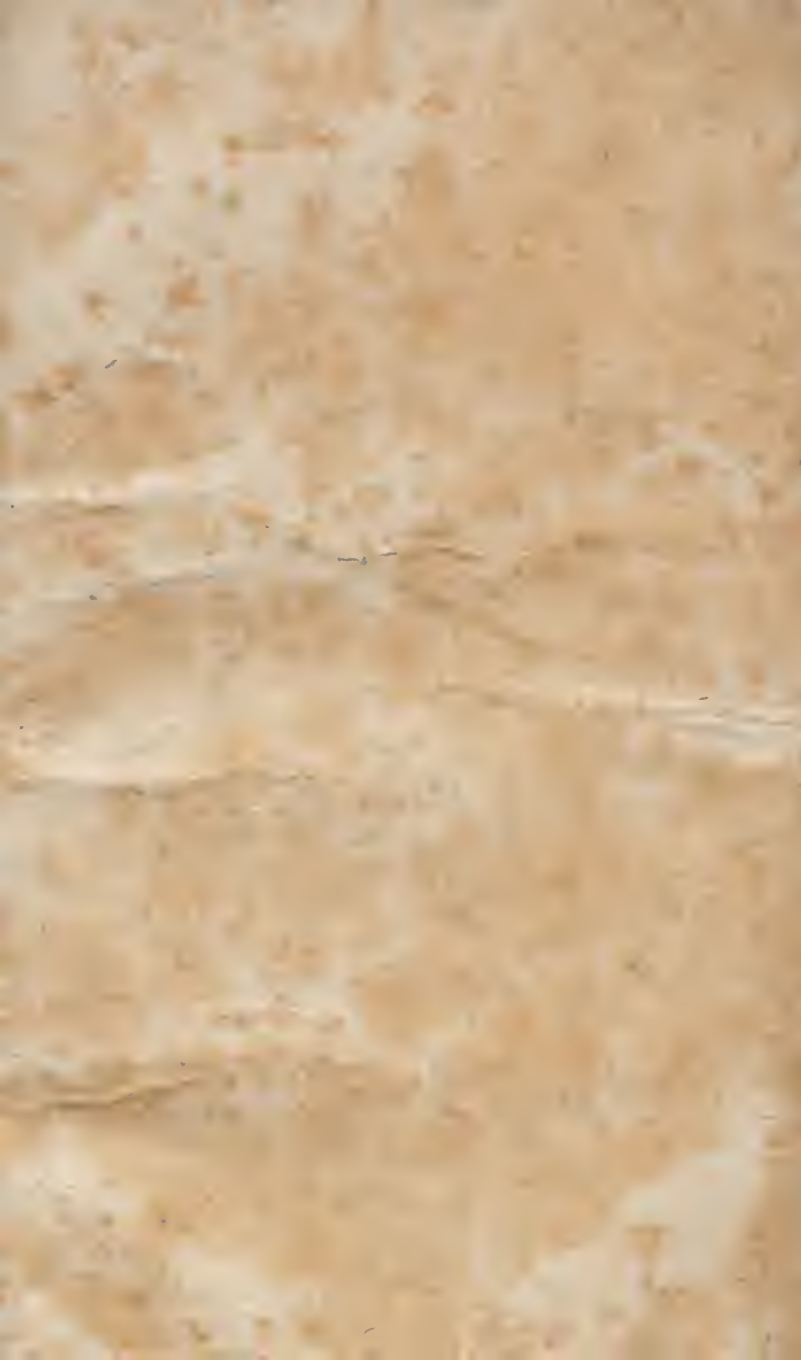

The proper season for transplanting trees in this latitude, is from the middle of October until the first or middle of May, during which time they may be safely transported; when they are destined for the south, the autumn and winter months, perhaps, are preferable, but when for this latitude or northerly, spring and autumn are equally good—evergreens are thought to succeed better when transplanted in the spring; much, however, depends upon the nature of the soil, if heavy, we would, in general, prefer the spring.

Green House plants can be transported by water, and for short distances by land, at almost any season, though the autumn, winter and spring months are preferable, as they may then be closely packed and require no attention on the passage.

For the information of distant customers of this garden the Proprietor has inserted the preceding list of generally known and esteemed esculent vegetable seeds, cultivated and sold by his respectable neighbours, D. & C. Landreth. For the convenience of those who purchase to sell again, the wholesale prices are affixed, though at times, a failure in the crop may cause an advance on those prices, yet it seldom happens, and then to a trifling amount. Customers of this garden, requiring seeds, will have their orders completed, from the above highly respectable establishment, and without any advance on their prices.
